DIRECTORS' MESSAGE

There is a story about a skipper in a round-the-world yacht race, who, whenever he was asked by a crew member if they could take a rest day, would reply: "Will it make the ship go faster?" That was his touchstone.

OneWorld.net has never been just a website, promoting the work of a single organization. It always was, and remains, a platform supporting a multiplicity of voices from civil society communities, big and small, gathered around the most critical issues affecting the human family. So our touchstone might be: "Will it make the dialogue fairer?" – more inclusive and equitable, globally and socially, and more mutually respectful.

We are delighted, therefore, that our civil society partnership has expanded to include more than 1,500 organizations, as well as more than 800 audio members of OneWorld Radio and a further 1,000-plus video members of OneWorld TV since its relaunch in April 2002. With OneWorld TV's revolutionary new format, video contributors no longer need to be professional film-makers with the resources to produce a full-length documentary. Now any citizen able to shoot a few moments' footage – of a human rights violation in a shanty town, say, or in a refugee camp – can become a producer whose video evidence is available for the world to see.

The same principles of inclusion lie at the heart of the Open Knowledge Network (OKN) project, chaired by OneWorld. The internet has been a game played by elites, but OKN (see p8) enables non-literate and impoverished people in rural communities to participate online at no cost to themselves.

OneWorld.net's global audience for these varied voices has tripled during the course of this last year. Yahoo.com, the world's biggest online news source, now welcomes OneWorld as one of its global news feeds, alongside Reuters. And we have been invited to share our innovatively inclusive approach to media at key global meetings, from the World Social Forum and World Economic Forum to the Ford Foundation's first Worldwide Assembly.

Internally, too, OneWorld has become more inclusive. Our centre directors have mentioned a growing sense of shared leadership at network-wide meetings. They also have more access to board meetings, thanks to the work of the trustees'

Governance Group. Women have been included more, too. The Board of Trustees achieved gender balance in 2002 – and the board's strong support for women's voices has helped promote gender awareness throughout OneWorld.

In November 2002 the Trustees celebrated the election of a new Chair, Larry Kirkman. As Dean of Communication at the American University, Washington, DC, Larry brings expert knowledge of media and marketing. Last November we were delighted that our Founding Chair, Prantal Sheth – a guiding light since the inception of OneWorld – agreed to remain on the board as Chair Emeritus. It was largely thanks to Pran's guidance that OneWorld International's governing body became a UK registered charity in early 2003.

One of Pran's watchwords has been the importance of including more voices from Middle Eastern and Muslim communities. In the stormy period since September 11th, we have often wished we had had more success here. We warmly welcome the ever-growing number of voices in the North calling for peace and mutual understanding. But we are equally mindful of the need to enable a global audience to hear more voices from communities, especially in the South, directly under threat of war.

Anuradha Vittachi and Peter Armstrong
Directors, OneWorld International

Prantal Sheth

Prantal Sheth died on 30 June 2003. We will sorely miss him. On our last visit, we presented him with a glass engraving, inscribed:

"Prantal Sheth CBE. 'Gentleness without, clarity within.'
OneWorld, 1995–2003."

We hope never to forget his example.

ONEWORLD CENTRES

Africa / Austria / Canada / Central America / España

OneWorld is an international internet-based network of autonomous centres governed and supported by OneWorld International Foundation and its operating company OneWorld International Ltd. OneWorld centres in Africa, the Americas, Asia and Europe publish country and continental editions of the OneWorld web portal in regional languages and work together in promoting human rights and sustainable development.

ONEWORLD AFRICA

www.oneworld.net/africa

OneWorld Africa is based in Lusaka, Zambia. In 2002/3 our key activities were the network's Africa edition as well as specialist thematic channels on debt (www.debtchannel.org) and AIDS (www.aidschannel.org). In the coming year we will also launch OneWorld Radio AIDS Network to promote free exchange of radio programmes on AIDS/HIV between radio stations worldwide.

Partnership in Africa grew from 70 to 120 organizations. We held training sessions to assist partners in developing their websites for advocacy and networking. We are now moving to become fully independent, concentrating on Southern Africa. Priscilla Jere, Director

ONEWORLD AUSTRIA

www.oneworld.at

The OneWorld Austria site is produced by Südwind Agentur, a well-established publisher of Südwind magazine and alternative news from a Southern perspective. In 2002/3 OneWorld Austria launched an EU monitor, where news about EU development policies is published. Currently funded by partners and a grant from the Austrian Ministry of Foreign Affairs, OneWorld Austria is working towards full OneWorld centre status. Lydia Matzka, Coordinator

ONEWORLD CANADA

www.oneworld.net/ca

Hosted by Alternatives (www.alternatives.ca), the latest new center within the network, OneWorld Canada, produces English and French editions. Funded by the Canadian International Development Agency, Canadian trade unions, foundations, partners and individuals, the center has grown from set-up to have a network of 68 partners.

OneWorld Canada editions are to merge with the "in cahoots" section of Rabble (www.rabble.ca), a major Canadian activist site (also a project of Alternatives) to trigger a formal public launch later in 2003. Our aim is not just to provide the best global social justice site for a Canadian audience but also to work with others in the OneWorld network to bring about a French language site focused on Francophone Africa.

Chad Lubelsky, Director

ONEWORLD CENTRAL AMERICA

www.oneworld.net/latinamerica

In 2002 OneWorld Central America became a fully established OneWorld centre, hosted by Fundación Acceso (www.acceso.or). The centre produces the regional OneWorld Latin America edition in Spanish and English.

Regional partnership grew in 2002/3 from 65 to 105 organizations. We held training sessions on the strategic use of the internet for communications in Guatemala, Honduras, El Salvador, Nicaragua and Costa Rica attended by over 65 organizations. Cristina Nogués, Executive Director

ONEWORLD ESPAÑA

www.oneworld.es

OneWorld España is a project of Fundació Un Sol Món, a non-profit foundation of Caixa Catalunya (www.caixacat.es), the third largest savings bank in Spain with a proud tradition of social responsibility. In our second year our partnership base has grown to over 100 NGO and civil society groups. Among our partners are key platforms of organizations like CONGDE (the Spanish platform on NGOs for development), Red2002 (NGOs working on AIDS issues) and FCVS (Catalan Federation of Social Volunteering).

To our editions in Spanish and Catalan we have added Canal Sida (www.canalsida.org) on HIV/AIDs, the first non-English OneWorld channel. Launched at the XIV International Conference on AIDS in Barcelona, the initiative has been welcomed by Spanish NGOs working on AIDS. We have extended the impact of our sites by introducing a weekly email newsletter already subscribed to by over 2,000 individuals, and have begun a syndication with the main electronic newspaper in Catalan, Vilaweb (www.vilaweb.com/solidaritat).

ONEWORLD CENTRES

Finland / Italy / Netherlands / South Asia

In 2002 we published "Connected? Spanish NGOs on the Internet", a report based on 250 interviews with NGOs, underlining our goal of helping NGOs in Spain realize the potential of the internet.

OneWorld España is now established as one of the essential resources for human rights and development in Spain. Our challenge is to improve and enlarge our content, to connect more people and organizations in the fight against poverty, social exclusion and injustice, and to promote better use of the internet. Carlota Franco, Director

ONEWORLD FINLAND

OneWorld Finland is an independent non-profit organization supported by Kepa (the Finnish NGO coalition), the Finnish government and the development journalism association Maailman sivu. The centre comprises a team of 12 journalists who produce Maailma.net, the Finnish language OneWorld, and content for the Finland Ministry for Foreign Affairs through a production contract. We have 30 partners including many of the leading NGOs in Finland.

This year we conducted an Open Source survey and started publishing special online reports on themes such as the UNDP Human Development Report and the Johannesburg World Summit on Sustainable Development.

Timo Mielonen, Coordinator

ONEWORLD ITALY/UNIMONDO

www.unimondo.org

Cooperative Unimondo was formed in 2002, making OneWorld Italy a fully independent organization. OneWorld partnership in Italy includes nearly 300 small to medium non-profit organizations. We work with Italian civil society not only on the web but also in many nationwide and international events. We organized World Social Agenda, one of the three main conferences on global issues within Civitas, Italy's biggest non-profit exposition. At the European Social Forum (www.fse-esf.org) in Florence, Unimondo ran workshops and seminars on networking and communication rights (see www.crisinfo.org) as well as reporting on the event.

Online we have launched our e-payment project (in collaboration with Banca Etica) that allows partners to receive donations and secure payments over the web.

Unimondo provides social justice coverage on Italy's most popular commercial portal, Italia OnLine, and, with other partners, has launched a portal for the Italian development NGO association (www.ong.it).

In May 2002 we organized the first Italian course on participatory budgeting and indicators on local development, aimed especially at local authorities, in the context of participatory democracy programs. This followed the successful example of Porto Alegre and other cities worldwide (see www.worldsocialagenda.it). OneWorld Italy is currently hosting OneWorld SouthEast Europe – see p4.

Jason Nardi, Director

ONEWORLD NETHERLANDS

This year was successful for OneWorld in the Netherlands in terms of audience, campaigns and online discussions. Over 35,000 people now use our site each month, making it the premier Dutch language site for people and organizations working and interested in development issues. We now have nearly 100 partner organizations. Our key alliances with Hivos and the International Institute for Communication and Development (IICD) on information and communication technology (ICT) and developmental cooperation issues have continued and included an online forum around preparations for the World Summit on the Information Society.

We have launched a major initiative, OneWorldMarket (www.oneworldmarket.nl), with the goal of bringing together business and development. Trade and investment can serve as bridges between North and South, yet they are still not contributing sufficiently to sustainable development in the South. ICTs can play a key role in making world trade and investment flows sustainable. They can unlock knowledge, bring people together and remove barriers between the private sector and social organizations. OneWorldMarket aims to be a platform fostering these processes of sustainability. Marije van Zomeren, Director

www.oneworld.net/southasia

OneWorld South Asia is based in New Delhi, India. Key activities in 2002/3 were producing the South Asia edition and two specialist thematic channels: Learning Channel on educational issues (www.learningchannel.org), and Digital

ONEWORLD CENTRES

South East Europe / UK / US / Network development

Opportunity Channel on ICTs (information and communication technologies) for development (www.digitalopportunity.org). Our centre plays a strong role in news production for the network, including syndication.

The partnership base in South Asia grew strongly from 144 to 224 organizations over the year (around one half in India and the rest from Pakistan, Nepal, Sri Lanka and Bangladesh). We held numerous training seminars to help partner organizations develop their use of ICTs. We also worked on the global resource ItrainOnline (www.itrainonline.org), a technology resource centre for people who want to learn how to use the internet effectively for social justice and sustainable development. Nitya Jacob, Regional Coordinator

ONEWORLD SOUTHEAST EUROPE

www.oneworld.net/see

The Observatory on the Balkans (www.osservatoribalcani.it), an information service on developments in the Balkans for Italian audiences, is one of OneWorld Italy's major projects. In 2003 we are launching a OneWorld South East Europe portal in English, Albanian, Macedonian and South Slavic.

ONEWORLD UK

OneWorld UK, until 2003 based at the Panos Institute, London, produced the UK edition of OneWorld.net, international daily news, campaigns, OneWorld Kids Channel and world news for OneWorld on Yahoo!. New arrangements for OneWorld UK will be announced later in 2003.

ONEWORLD US

www.oneworld.net/us

OneWorld US produces a daily news edition aimed at enhancing the knowledge of US citizens about international affairs and development and contributes to the OneWorld syndication on Yahoo! world news. The center also manages the recruitment and engagement of US-based partner organizations in OneWorld.

In 2002/3 we undertook a number of surveys, focus groups and evaluations for all of our activities. Feedback confirmed that the US edition was providing a unique opportunity for Americans to learn about the world through the eyes of dedicated nonprofits from around the globe. We also began to distribute our edition by email and already have over 3,000 readers in this format.

US partners, now over 120, are increasingly finding OneWorld useful for their work. This year we held 12 well-attended peer learning exchanges – monthly partner meetings where internet skills are shared face-to-face and electronically. OneWorld has a bright future in the United States. We intend to continue listening carefully and refining our practices as we transition in 2003 from being a project of Benton Foundation to an independent charitable organization. Our thanks to Ford Foundation and Markle Foundation for their support, and special thanks to all of our partners and the strategic allies that made the past year such a great one for the US center. Michael Litz, Director

NETWORK DEVELOPMENT

OneWorld seeks to become more geographically, linguistically and culturally inclusive and diverse, and to strengthen its bonds with the global South and societies in transition (Eastern Europe and Central Asia). We welcome approaches from like-minded organizations. Please contact OneWorld International or any OneWorld centre (see pp11-12 and back cover for contact details).

PARTNERSHIP

OneWorld's wider community

Partnership is essential to our mission. All OneWorld centres serve a wider community of partner organizations working for global justice. Engaging with partners at country and regional level, as well as internationally, ensures that our work has a strong local dimension while retaining the reach of a global network. OneWorld's core activity of highlighting partners' news and analysis on our web pages brings a worldwide audience to our partners' websites.

During the past year the number of partners in the OneWorld community grew steadily. The total figure passed 1,500, based in 89 countries, in early 2003, in addition to almost 2,000 OneWorld Radio and OneWorld TV members. We will continue to listen and respond to our partners, so that we can address civil society's priorities as effectively as possible through our work.

WHAT DO PARTNERS SAY ABOUT ONEWORLD?

"We are all so appreciative of the support and encouragement you are giving us ... Our website is such an important information tool to communicate ... we are so encouraged by our new partnership." Vikash, India (www.vikash.org)

"OneWorld has contributed to the feeling of an equal partnership that enhances not only the African perspectives but also the technological skills needed." Mwengo, Zimbabwe (www.mwengo.org)

"We consider media work a major tool in which we can advocate a peaceful and just solution ... and very much appreciate being a member of the OneWorld.net." Palestinian Centre for Rapprochement between People (www.rapprochement.org)

"We need OneWorld – not one superpower – managing the news." Casa Alianza, Costa Rica (www.casa-alianza.org)

"I hope that our cooperation will be long and fruitful, and that we will together work towards establishing a peaceful and better world." RTVM, Yugoslavia

"OneWorld.net is the first site we check for news from the international development community and we're thrilled to have become a partner organization." Women's Edge, USA (www.womensedge.org)

"OneWorld.net is ... a most comprehensive and authoritative gateway for the concerned citizen to learn about their world ... a welcoming, lively and professional website for trustworthy global news, analysis and education." EuropaWorld (www.europaworld.org)

DEVELOPMENT THROUGH DIALOGUE: DGROUPS

www.dgroups.org

In 2002 OneWorld and project partners Bellanet, DFID, the Institute for Connectivity in the Americas, IICD and UNAIDS launched a new internet-based medium for collaborative working. Dgroups offers tools and services to bring people together in dialogue. Whether to support a team, a network, a partnership or a community, Dgroups provides simple-to-use, non-commercial workspaces that aim to meet the needs of low-bandwidth users in the South.

For more information about becoming a OneWorld partner organization, visit www.oneworld.net/partners, or contact your nearest OneWorld centre.

Organizations based in Austria, Canada, Finland, Italy, Netherlands, Spain and the USA should contact the OneWorld centre in their country. Contact OneWorld Africa if based in Africa; OneWorld South Asia if based in South or Southeast Asia; OneWorld Central America if based in Mexico, Central and South America, and the Caribbean; OneWorld Italy if based in Southeast Europe. All other organizations should contact OneWorld International. Any organization can email partnership@oneworld.net.

CHANNELS

Global perspectives on issues that matter

Our thematic channels, mainly edited from OneWorld centres in the South, give global perspectives on critical issues facing our world.

AIDS CHANNEL

Launched on World AIDS Day 2001 and edited from OneWorld Africa, AIDS Channel collates news and resources from civil society, governments, research institutions and the media. It takes a developmental and human rights approach to HIV/AIDS. In 2002 we launched OneWorld AIDS Radio (<http://aidsradio.oneworld.net>), allowing broadcasters to share multilingual radio programming through the web, and the Spanish-language Canal Sida (www.canalsida.org).

"We're very excited about our new membership with OneWorld and look forward to working with AIDS Channel." Global Health Council (www.globalhealth.org)

DEBT CHANNEL

www.debtchannel.org

Debt Channel, also edited from OneWorld Africa, features the latest news, views and research on debt from around the world. In 2002 the channel ran major discussion forums moderated by the European Network on Debt and Development (www.eurodad.org): on Financing for Development (FfD), (linked to the Monterrey Conference, March), and on the World Summit for Sustainable Development (August/September).

"I have read most of the contributions with great interest ... and was astonished by the quality produced in an electronic discussion forum." European FfD NGO caucus

DIGITAL OPPORTUNITY CHANNEL

www.digitalopportunity.org

OneWorld and the Digital Divide Network (Benton Foundation) co-launched Digital Opportunity Channel in May 2002. Edited from OneWorld South Asia, the channel informs a global audience on how information and communication technologies (ICTs) can promote sustainable development and better quality of life. The channel carries news, success stories, funding and web resources, campaigns and discussion forums.

"Easy to navigate ... very accessible ... there is space for people to share their expertise." BBC World Service, "Go Digital"

LEARNING CHANNEL

Learning Channel, also edited from OneWorld South Asia, brings together more than 450 organizations worldwide in promoting the best initiatives in education. The channel features grassroots initiatives, coming events, analysis and opinion, campaigns, discussion forums and specialist topics such as early childhood care. Organizations that have directly benefited from being featured on the channel include Indian children's charity Katha (www.katha.org) and the Barefoot College (www.barefootcollege.org).

"Thanks for being a 'voice' for the poor." Bunyard Literacy Community Council (www.bunyard.org.pk)

The OneWorld family of channels also includes:

KIDS CHANNEL

www.oneworld.net/penguin

Kids Channel offers a child-friendly perspective on the world as seen by Tiki, a king penguin. Tiki shows how humans are adversely affecting all life, including their own, enriching his message with attractive, amusing images and careful design. Tiki encourages kids to get involved locally with solving global problems.

ITRAIN ONLINE

ItrainOnline is a joint initiative with APC (www.apc.org), Bellanet (www.bellanet.org), IICD (www.iicd.org), IISD (www.iisd.org) and INASP (www.inasp.info). It provides high-quality, practical information on ICTs, giving learners and trainers in the South an entry point on the web for the resources and tools they need.

"ItrainOnline is one development initiative that will help [our] people. ICT has such a role to play in helping people demand good governance ... and helping prepare Africans for the future." Build Africa (www.buildafrica.org)

MEDIA CHANNEL

Media Channel is a US-based public-interest website concerned with the political, cultural and social impacts of the media. Its mission is to inspire debate, collaboration, action and citizen engagement.

ONEWORLD RADIO & TV

www.oneworld.net/radio

www.oneworld.net/tv

ONEWORLD RADIO

Building on the success of OneWorld Radio Southeast Europe (www.oneworld.net/radio/see), OneWorld Radio launched in 2002 as a global portal. Membership has grown rapidly to include more than 800 broadcasters and NGOs from 78 countries. In July 2002 OneWorld Africa launched OneWorld Radio AIDS Network (www.oneworld.net/radio/aids) in Johannesburg. The OneWorld Radio family of sites now offers hundreds of audio files in 29 languages for exchange.

Networking with the radio-for-development community has been a key activity, facilitated online through "working together" and "campaigns" sections of the portal, and offline through events in the USA, UK and South Africa and monthly newsletters in English, Spanish and French. Strategic partnerships have been developed with UNESCO, UNICEF, Plan International and other global organizations, alongside collaborations with such broadcaster networks as AMARC, World Radio Network, Radio Netherlands and WorldSpace Foundation.

OneWorld Radio marked World AIDS Day, 1 December 2002, with a special link-up with MTV. We offered radio stations around the world the opportunity to broadcast HIV/AIDS awareness programming from the MTV Staying Alive campaign (www.staying-alive.org).

In 2003 OneWorld Radio is expanding into ICT training of African broadcasters, resulting in a new regional edition – OneWorld Radio Africa – and two new language editions.

"We are glad to become members of One World Radio, it is great!" Independent Children's Media Center, Ukraine

ONEWORLD TV

Video on the internet is a powerful and largely unrealized way of communicating with a wider audience about human rights and sustainable development. OneWorld TV is an online video dialogue space where people with access to a camcorder and dial-up modem can upload short video clips – evidence, testimony and opinion – creating a collaboratively built body of material. We are developing content around such themes as climate change, HIV/AIDS, trade, the "war on terrorism", GM food, renewable energy, and the intercommunity conflict in Israel / Palestine.

Viewers navigate through 60-second clips already grouped by subject, choosing which storylines to follow in an interactive exploration of global issues. In its first six months OneWorld TV attracted more than 1,000 members from nearly 50 countries.

"The greatest threat to the independent media community is commercialism, the greatest frustration the so-called digital divide. Yet its real ambition is to give voice to the world's silent majority. OneWorld TV exemplifies this vision."

Martin Collier, Executive Director, Glaser Progress Foundation (www.progressproject.org)

"OneWorld TV is an exciting new space for NGOs, video activists and filmmakers to take video and human rights out onto the web. It combines the internet and digital cameras in the fight to save lives and reduce human suffering."

Dan Thurley, Amnesty International (www.amnesty.org)

"The future promises another communications revolution ... OneWorld TV is already showing the way."

Ford Foundation Report, winter 2002/3

"OneWorld Radio is an innovative use of the internet to support radio stations across the world in communicating the most important social issues."

GEORGIA FRANKLIN, VICE PRESIDENT FOR PUBLIC AFFAIRS, MTV NETWORKS INTERNATIONAL

"OneWorld TV is an impressive response to a global media system that all too often is filtering out both innovation in film-making and the wider communication of social issues to citizens around world. If you are a film-maker concerned about what's going on in our world today, add your stories to OneWorld TV and join this radical network on the cutting edge of technology and social change."

MIKE FIGGIS, FILM DIRECTOR (LEAVING LAS VEGAS, TIMECODE)

OPEN KNOWLEDGE NETWORK

www.openknowledge.net

OneWorld and a consortium of partners are collaborating to develop the Open Knowledge Network (OKN), a pioneering local content initiative with an emphasis on developing countries. In 2002 the UK and Canadian governments committed funding to OKN, enabling the project to move further along the road from vision to reality.

OKN emerged from the G8 Digital Opportunity Task Force (DOT Force), set up to identify how governments, businesses and civil society can work together to advance human development and reduce poverty through use of ICTs. Increasing access to the internet for poorer communities worldwide will only be beneficial if people can find local content that is relevant to their lives. OKN aims to promote information and communication that can make a real difference to the majority of the world's population, on subjects ranging from AIDS to education, from agriculture to human rights.

OneWorld, the International Institute for Communication and Development (www.iicd.org), the International Development Research Centre (www.idrc.ca), the Berkman Center of Harvard Law School (<http://cyber.law.harvard.edu>), Accenture (www.accenture.com) and the M.S. Swaminathan Research Foundation (MSSRF, www.mssrf.org) are developing OKN alongside many other partners.

In 2002 the OKN concept underwent its first pilot test in the villages of Pondicherry, South India, in collaboration with the MSSRF information village research project, working with a network of village telecentres and a regional hub. The pilot demonstrated how features such as a set of standards and systems could enhance an existing information initiative. Specially written stand-alone software was used to collect, tag and store local knowledge in way that could be scaled throughout the global South.

The findings from the pilot were presented to a group of practitioners in May 2002. Over 40 participants representing grassroots networks, international organizations, governments and the private sector, from Africa, Asia, Europe and the Americas, took part. The proposal was further refined and new suggestions emerged.

In 2003 the focus of OKN is extending to Africa for a programme of workshops and pilots to test its key principles in different contexts. We will continue to develop OKN's software, explore voice applications with WorldTalk (www.worldtalk.org), and incorporate recorded voice and mobile text messaging.

Work will also continue on intellectual property rights with the Berkman Center of Harvard Law School. An OKN syndication centre will be developed at OneWorld South Asia to provide legal and technical support to the regional hubs.

“The OKN is going to do at a global level what we are doing at a local level.”

JOHN DADA, FANTSUAM FOUNDATION, NIGERIA (WWW.FANTSUAM.COM)

“The project design really takes advantage of mature accomplishments across a range of fields – the propagation of telecenters and cyber cafés in Africa, Asia and Latin America, satellite communications, metadata sets and XML. OKN is a strong synthesis of these elements with a core of exchange at local, regional and international levels based on participation and meeting real information needs.”

www.oneworld.net/technology

CORPORATE RELATIONS

Solving complex social problems requires collaboration. Business, governments and the voluntary sector can create greater benefits by working together.

OneWorld values enormously its relationships with technology, media and telecommunication companies that want to pioneer the use of ICTs for development. By working with us, businesses can make a demonstrable contribution to social justice and build relationships with their communities.

Thank you to all our 2002/3 corporate supporters, including:

Accenture (www.accenture.com) for working with OneWorld on the G8 DOT Force and OKN, and providing pro-bono consultancy.

Banca Etica (www.bancaetica.com) for support to, and collaboration with, OneWorld Italy/Unimondo.

Cable & Wireless (www.cw.com) for helping OneWorld expand its editorial capacity and survey audiences for our Yahoo! news service.

TECHNOLOGY SERVICES

OneWorld offers comprehensive consultancy and software production services to partners and other civil society organizations working to build a better world. As a not-for-profit network dedicated to building online communities for global justice, OneWorld brings a unique approach to the role of the internet in delivering strategic objectives.

In 2002/3 OneWorld has developed an Open Source content management system (CMS) specifically for the non-profit sector. Based on eZ Publish, the CMS underpins OneWorld's relaunched websites and is now available to like-minded organizations. Our system enables editors based in several locations to work together to create web publications and provides discussion forums, automatic email digests of web content, visitor/membership databases, and many other interactive features.

OneWorld has developed and deployed a range of internet applications for itself and for other civil society organizations:

- Index, catalogue and search. Spider software "reads" documents within an organization or anywhere on the internet; then an intelligent search engine mines the information for you.
- Knowledge management. Track, manage and share knowledge assets; maintain directories of organizations and contacts, project databases, central repositories for cross-referenced resources, and flexible customized classification systems.
- Intranet. Groupware applications incorporating web- and client-based email, shared contacts, contact relationship management, group calendars, and collaborative online workspaces.
- Multimedia database and showcase. Publish and share an online archive of searchable multimedia files; offer streamed media within an interactive collaborative multimedia environment.

OneWorld is committed to the principles of Open Source software, which anyone is free to modify and extend.

Our experience building oneworld.net and the software behind it are available to help your organization. Email us at technology@oneworld.net or telephone 44 (0)20 7735 2100 to discuss your requirements.
